

Title of Motion Picture

The Big Flood

Produced and Manufactured by
PATHE EXCHANGE, Inc.
NEW YORK, N. Y.

Copyrighted

©C/M 2195

SEP 27 '22 ✓

Fables Pictures, Inc.,
1562 Broadway, New York City.
Fable No. 68
Released - Oct. 1, 1922

©C1M 2195 ✓
THE BIG FLOOD

Rutgers Neilson,
News Editor.

The lightning flashes, the clouds look big and old Father Noah's corns smartly tell him that it is going to rain. These never-failing signs are correct. It begins to rain cats and dogs in torrents and the felines and canines scamper away as they drop upon terra firma, herself. Noah awakens Paul Revere Cat and the courier leaps upon his hobby horse. His master sends him out to warn the folk of animeldom that a great precipitation is starting. "Big storm coming. Beat it to the ark" is the message the cat courier cries. Mrs. Snail takes in her washing and hastily leaves her toadstool home with her brood. Even a family of flivvers give up their garage dwelling as a flash of lightning strikes it. Every living creature rushes toward the ark. A gigantic dinosaur acts as a runway up to the deck of the ark and from time to time makes his humps move like an escalator for the smaller animals. A hippo suspended by its tail from a derrick helps load the trunks and suitcases into the hold of the vessel. No sooner are the denizens of the world aboard than the downpour produces a flood. The rolling waves transport the ark about the world. And then a clear day dawns and Noah brings a piano out on deck. The old boy tickles the ivories and a duo of mice execute dance steps eccentricque. Now it happens that Noah put the two skunks on a separate boat when he marched his animals two by two into the ark. But so alluring is the music that it entices the pair of skunks and they climb along the tow-line onto the ark. Their entrance causes a stampede which results in all the animals jumping into the briny deep. Then the skunks confine their pursuit to Noah who takes refuge on the masthead. The mast breaks off and a swift wind transports the navigator through the air, followed by the skunks. Finally Noah falls to earth in Carnibal territory. Just as a hungry cannibal seizes Noah, the skunks fall down and hit the dusky chap on his solid head. The Natural odor of the skunk causes the cannibal to beat a hasty retreat and one of the animals pursues him. Then the other skunk puts out its paw and Noah grabs it and shakes. The wind blew well when it transported the skunks after Noah. Thus we learn the moral that: "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good."

This document is from the Library of Congress
“Motion Picture Copyright Descriptions Collection,
1912-1977”

Collections Summary:

The Motion Picture Copyright Descriptions Collection, Class L and Class M, consists of forms, abstracts, plot summaries, dialogue and continuity scripts, press kits, publicity and other material, submitted for the purpose of enabling descriptive cataloging for motion picture photoplays registered with the United States Copyright Office under Class L and Class M from 1912-1977.

Class L Finding Aid:

<https://hdl.loc.gov/loc.mbrsmi/eadmbrsmi.mi020004>

Class M Finding Aid:

<https://hdl.loc.gov/loc.mbrsmi/eadmbrsmi.mi021002>

National Audio-Visual Conservation Center
The Library of Congress